The lights are just too bright and the wrong color for our eyes and our local wildlife. Sometimes on long roads and an approaching vehicle has these bright blue halogen lights ( not on high beam) I have to pull off the road and wait. Even at a quarter mile the bright light is damaging ... Read more

I sign because there is no reason for us to be subjected to "dazzling" while driving , while enjoying (?) time at home, while out and about recreating, etc. Enough is enough. We must no let up on regulatory agencies. I wish there were a class action lawsuit in place. Nothing will change until we find a way to put our symbolic knee on the (symbolic) neck of automobile manufacturers and lighting manufacturers. This is the same as my having to breath second-hand smoke or subjecting me to chemical hazes be it in theatres (for lighting effects) or pesticides used on crops. STOP THE MADNESS

It is difficult to see the road at night in a lot of oncoming traffic with the newer bright blue- white headlights which all seem to be aimed too high. My eyes don't have a chance to adjust, and I get eye fatigue and headache from the glare.

Excessively bright headlights in rural America make driving at night unsafe. Temporary blindness from the bright light couples with lack of street lights, reflectors to signal curves in the road and wildlife poses entirely too many safety risks.
